Dr. Benjamin Castleman,
Department of Pathology,
Massachusetts General Hospital,
Boston 14, Mass.

Dear Dr. Castleman :

A Peruvian young man, Luis Loret Mola, who has just finished his complete medical education and will graduate next month, wishes to receive an adequate training in pathological anatomy and on my advice he would like to work in your Department for a period of one year beginning sometime next December. He has been working with me for the last seven years and I am very well impressed with his ability, honesty and interest in his work. In addition, he has a very pleasant personality and a cooperative spirit. There is no problem in regard to the economic requirements. His family (his father is a professor in our Faculty of Medicine) is able to provide the necessary support for travel and maintenance. He has no pretention about the kind of activities which could be assigned to him on a full time basis. His interest is to receive training in a pathological department connected with clinical material.

I will greatly appreciate your acceptance of this man, if possible, for a period of one year beginning sometime next December. It will be a great pleasure and highly profitable to have with us a man trained in your excellent Department and under your efficient guidance.

With best regards,

Yours sincerely

Dr. Alberto Hurtado
